

Chicago's South Side in the 1940s

Wayne Miller's photographs chronicle a black Chicago in the 1940s: the South Side community of African Americans who settled in the city during the Great Migration of the World War II years.

Saturday, November 22

2:00 PM

5710 South Woodlawn Avenue

A symposium and reception
celebrating the photography
of Wayne Miller

FEATURING: Timuel Black (AM'54), Professor Emeritus, City Colleges of Chicago; Professor Jacqueline Goldsby, Department of English; Professor Adam Green (AB'85), Department of History; Professor Joel Snyder, Department of Art History; Professor Amy Dru Stanley, Department of History; Professor Jacqueline Stewart (AM'93, PhD'99), Northwestern University; and photographer Wayne F. Miller.

Persons with disabilities may request assistance in advance by contacting Verna McQuown at 773/702-2071.

SPONSORED BY THE OFFICE OF DEPUTY PROVOST
FOR RESEARCH AND MINORITY ISSUES.
SPECIAL THANKS TO STEPHEN DAITER GALLERY.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO